Graduates Ratify Constitution For New Association

Dean Eve Outlines Aims Of Society At Tea Sunday

OFFICERS ELECTED

Design To Bring Together All Members Of Graduate Faculty

A new association swells the ranks of those already on the Campus; the Graduate Student Association of McGill is no longer a dream. Yesterday afternoon, at a tea for the faculty of Graduate Students held in Strathcona Hall, a Constitution was proposed and ratified, and officers were elected.

In a short speech after the tea, preceding entertainment and the reading of the constitution, Dr. Eve stated some of the aims and benefits of the Association. He said that there were "about 285 Graduate Students in McGill who lacked many of the social opportunities afforded to the Undergraduates. Men of the various departments and faculties have no chance of getting together, if only to see the other fellow's slant on things. There has been an endeavour made in Science to remedy this state of affairs through the Sigma XI Society, but this has not the far reaching influences that it is hoped the Graduate Student Association will have."

At present Dean Eve said, every Graduate was entitled to medical attention from Dr. Lamb or Dr. Harvey, but there is no provision made against long stays in the hospital. He hoped, however, that the Association might find means to cope with this deficiency. He also hinted at a certain amount of athletic activity for the members.

Doctor Eve was followed by some entertainment in the form of Violin and Piano music and character impersonation. Demonstrator Massey, an embryo professor in Oomatology, was appointed Chairman of the meeting. Mr. Massey added to Professor Eve's speech by saying that the Association was also largely to help the Graduate Students from other Universities. But in speaking of activities such as skating and tennis, he said that all Graduate Students would be regarded as outsiders. He hoped.

Fairley To Speak On German Poet

Goethe Memorial Lecture Tonight In Moyse Hall

"Goethe the Poet," is the title of the fourth Goethe Centennial lecture, to be delivered by Professor Barker Fairley of the University of Toronto. The lecture commences at 8:30 to-night in Moyse Hall.

Professor Fairley is a well known scholar of German, and is one of the members of the Department of German at the University of Toronto. He is the author of a number of books on German Literature and of numerous articles, many dealing with English Literature. A book by him on Goethe is in the press.

The Goethe Centennial is being given in memory of the hundredth Anniversary of Goethe's Death, March 22, 1832. The program of lectures and entertainments forming the Commemorative ceremonies was arranged by the Montreal Branch of the Goethe Society of America. The lectures are all free, the public being cordially invited.

All the lectures except the recital of some of Goethe's work by the well known Mr. Max Montor next month, are being given in English, so that all may understand. On the 22nd of March, the Society will hold a banquet.

Martin To Read Paper On Japanese Imperialism

"Japanese Imperialism" will be the subject of the paper which H. D. Martin will read at the next meeting of the Historical Club.

The meeting will be held at the home of W. Gatehouse 38 Edgemoor Road on Tuesday, February 16 at 8:30 p.m. All interested have been invited to attend.

Individualist Sees Need Of Society, Says Dr. C. Hendel

Canada Sound, Say Debaters

STE. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, P.Q., Feb. 14.—(By Resident Correspondent)—Canada is fundamentally sound; this is the verdict reached Friday night when Macdonald College Debaters defeated a travelling Ontario team in the Assembly Hall of the college.

This intercollegiate debate was sponsored by the National Federation of Canadian University Students. The visiting team, which is making a tour of Eastern Canada, is composed of W. J. Garnett, of the Ontario Agricultural College, and J. Osmond Matt, of the University of Ottawa.

The Macdonald team was mixed, consisting of one man and one woman student, Johnson and Munro. They defended the proposition.

Senders Of Anonymous Valentines Meet With Criticism Of Government

At the next meeting of the German Club which will take place at 4:15 this afternoon in Strathcona Hall, plans will be concluded for the dance to be held next week, after which there will be a mock-debate, the subject of which is, Resolved: that the Senders of Anonymous Valentines should be exterminated.

At the last meeting it was decided, by an overwhelming vote, to hold an informal supper dance for members of the German Club, on the same lines as those held in Germany, where the ladies "go Dutch", paying their own part of the entertainment.

Owing to the unsuitability of the date which was previously set, it has been decided to hold the dance on Friday, February 26. Capitol Cafe was finally settled upon as the seat of the frolic, and the cost of tickets has been reduced to the sum of 75c.

Final arrangements will be completed this afternoon, and any suggestions (Continued on Page Four)

Debating Trophy Stays Forgotten

NEGLECTED and forgotten, there has lain in Colonel Bovey's office for the past two years a silver trophy donated in 1930 by the Arts-Undergraduate Society for inter-class debating. Competed for then, it has since been ignored.

In the season 1929-1930 the trophy was won by the fourth year, represented by E. H. Johnson and L. L. Rubin. But last year no inter-class competition was held, and so far this season none has been arranged.

The trophy is a silver shield in the form of an open book, on a wooden base. It measures approximately 16 by ten inches.

Once More "Alice" Wins Applause Of Children

The Department of English and the Department of Extra-Mural Relations presented "Alice in Wonderland" for the fifth and last time in Moyse Hall on Saturday afternoon before a capacity audience, and it was received with the usual enthusiasm and applause.

Katherine McCaffrey again made a good impression as lovable, little Alice herself. An amusing comparison between the teaching methods employed in the fictitious schools under the sea, and Alice's school, was drawn up by the Mock Turtle (Hume Cronyn) and the Gryphon (John Kerr) on one hand, and Alice on the other. Head Of Philosophy Department Delivers Lecture At Y.M.C.A. Forum

Refuses To Recognize Man In Authority As Superior To Himself

"True individualism implies recognition of Society and a Social Order as essential to Man's good," said Professor C. W. Hendel, Chairman of the Department of Philosophy at McGill, speaking yesterday afternoon at the Y.M.C.A. Forum. The title of his speech was: "Individualism—Its Values and Defects."

Tracing the history of the individualistic expression, Prof. Hendel said, "The first assertion of individual right in modern history is the right of Man to worship God in his own community. In the Declaration of the Rights of Man, drawn up at the time of the French Revolution, the religious rights of the individual were the first to be invoked."

But very soon the Reformed Church became themselves intolerant of the principle they had invoked. They began putting down that individualism which they themselves had stressed. And thus, Individualism forsook the Reformed Catholic Church and took to secular life. Industry was then seen to make the world very pleasant. It was asserted that man has a natural right to all these advantages, and the right to happiness was called inalienable.

"Thus the relation of the Individualist has become political and economical. But in this, Individualism is compatible with law and order for the true Individualist does not assert the right to do indolently just as he pleases, but rather the right to live in a community subject to laws that are made for the good of that community and not from selfish interests."

Independence of no Value.

This type of Individualism is expressed both by Locke and Rousseau, who assert that sheer independence is a quality of no value, and that one must be conscious of one's obligations to the community. The true Individualist believes in freedom under the hand of the law. "Let no man tell me my rule," says Kant. My reason sees law that is imperative in every situation of my life. Man has a soul, and cannot be used for any purpose beyond himself.

Will be True Citizen.

"That kind of Individualist I have described," continued the speaker, "can, by virtue of his Individualism be a true friend or lover. He will carry his spirit into marriage. He will respect personality in his wife and his child. He will be patient, and will understand his child as a child, and not expect to teach it by principles that apply to much older people."

"He can be a good citizen, loyal to laws that spell justice and common good, and willing to contribute to their upkeep. He can worship God truly, and his action will interpret true belief. But he cannot be a slave, either to opinion, or Church, or State. He cannot be a party-man, or henchman. He cannot be intolerant."

Belief is Conditional.

The Individualist acknowledges the supremacy of God, but in the administration of his offices by men, he believes only what he knows is true. Thus his belief is always conditional. His attitude comes in contact with the prevailing self-interest in men. He realized the existence of

Royal Society Has Many Applications For Ten Awards

Carnegie Fund Gives Traveling Scholarships To Canadian Students

FOR RESEARCH WORK

Board Announces That Candidates Must Apply Before March 15

Applications for travelling fellowships are coming in fast and from all sides to the Royal Society of Canada. These fellowships, worth $1,500 apiece, are to be given this spring to ten Canadian students. They are donated as part of the Carnegie Endowment Fund, and it is stipulated under the conditions of the donation that their holders must take up some traveling research work in any of the branches of Science, Economics, or Literature.

The fellowship board of the Royal Society decided, at a meeting in Ottawa on Saturday, that all applications and papers pertaining to the fellowships must be before the Secretary of the board before March 15. The Royal Society has certain methods by which each of the many applications is carefully studied by a special committee.

Committees Separate

Each committee, of which there are five, represents a division of Science, Economics or Literature. These committees report on each separate work of application are submitted to the board. The board then carefully decides to whom the ten fellowships are to go.

This year there are nearly one hundred candidates which makes the task of appointing the ten fellowship-receivers an extremely difficult one. Nearly one quarter of the total number of applicants are women.

Applications from both men and women have been received from almost every university in Canada. A large number of these have also put in some time at post graduate work in the great universities of the United States, Great Britain, or Germany. There have also been applications received from as far a field as Honolulu and Egypt.

The awards are expected to be announced about the middle of April.

Arts '33 To Hold Meeting At Noon

To Discuss Proposals For Social Function

There will be a mass meeting of the members of the class of Arts '33 in the Smoking Room of the Arts Building at one o'clock today. The Entertainment Committee especially, and all Arts juniors are asked to be present.

The main object of the meeting today is to discuss the possibility of holding a class social function some time in the near future. The Executive has been active during the last two weeks getting tenders for a supper dance.

However, it has not yet been decided whether to hold a dance or some other entertainment. If the weather is favorable it may be possible to hold a toboggan party. These proposals, and any others that come up, will be discussed today.

Saturday Concert Attendance Good

Two artists, Mme. Roy-Vilandre, soprano, and Mr. Leduc, cellist, gave a well attended concert, Saturday afternoon at Tudor Hall. Mme. Vilandre sang a few modern compositions, and also a number of folk-songs both of France and of Canada, for which she attired herself in appropriate costumes. Her voice was well controlled, and quite suited to mimic singing.

The cellist had also a modern program, two numbers, Corelli's "Grave" and Van Goens "Scherzo", being popular melodies, while a third was by Illashenko, the Russian composer who is now visiting the city. This last composition was very melodic, and full of interest, and was enhanced by the cellist's surprisingly rich smooth tone.

Hornpipe Number By Frank Hanson Finely Interpreted

Montreal Orchestra Displays Expert Technique In Concert

WITH a program including a first performance, a very modern composition, and a guest singer, as well as the more classical numbers, the Montreal Orchestra gave a well handled concert yesterday at His Majesty's Theatre. Without exception, the numbers were enthusiastically greeted by well merited applause, for, keeping to the high standard of playing that has been characteristic of the past few concerts, the Orchestra maintained a fine tone, and a commendable degree of unity.

Taking the last number first, the "Hornpipe for full Orchestra" by the McGill student, Frank Hanson, the music proved very reminiscent of Percy Grainger's Orchestrations of the English Morris dances, having a similar lightness, gaiety, and rhythmic cadence, amply supported by well distributed instrumentation. The melody harmonized well with the requirements of the Hornpipe dance, and had apparently been carefully studied by the players, since it was accorded a very clear interpretation.

Arnold Bax is very popular in England, if one is to believe certain avowed modernists from that country. His "Garden of Fand" played yesterday gave a fine sample of his work. It is a mass of tone colouring, with a few suggestions of melody of intriguing nature. Soloists in almost every section of the orchestra are given a cadenza—the violin, the viola, the cello, the flute, the celeste, and the harp, and the result is a completeness of interpretation unknown to the classicists.

Queen's Representatives Meet Baker And Marshall In Ball Room

Party Feeling Runs High As Last Minute Meetings Are Held

Excitement in local political circles is rising to a high pitch as the opening session of the Mock Parliament draws closer. A hot controversy has already been stirred up on the burning question of Nationalism and its influence between the rival parties and their respective leaders.

Members for the various constituencies are holding last minute meetings to assure their frenzied supporters of their stand on the all absorbing problem of Nationalism. The leaders of the opposition, J. S. Warrington and J. Parker of Queens, smarting at the victory of members from McGill at the last meeting, are determined to wreak their revenge next Wednesday night when they meet Ken Baker and Arthur Marshall.

Complete Arrangements.

All arrangements for the opening of the Mock Parliament in the Union Ballroom are completed and a vast audience is expected, admission being free to all. The title of the debate is, "Resolved that the growth of nationalism is retarding the growth of world recovery."

Ken Baker and Arthur Marshall, upholding the affirmative are both well known debaters. The former is a past president of the League of Nations Club, president of the Arts Undergraduate Society and McGill Representative to the International Students Conference at Mount Holyoke last summer. The latter was winner of the Bovey Shield for impromptu debating, and is a well known speaker about college.

Banrighinn Gu-Broth, Ont. Feb. 15.

An impassioned plea for nationalism was delivered by the Hon. J. S. Warrington at a banquet tendered in honour of him by his admirers, and the Society for the Preservation of Gaelic, last night. In the midst of his speech, Mr. Warrington was interrupted by the chairman, Mr.

Pick Of Red Team Plays Vs. Olympics

COACH BELL PICKS STARS FOR SQUAD

World's Amateur Hockey Championship Practically At Stake In First Game At Forum

HOCKEY fans of Montreal will have the opportunity of seeing what practically amounts to the World's amateur championship tonight in the Forum, when the All-Star team under the direction of Dr. Bobby Bell, meets the returning and victorious Canadian Olympic sextet in an exhibition game before the latter squad returns to its home in Winnipeg.

Five McGill Men

The local aggregation should not find it difficult to beat the Olympic Champions as it is composed of the best players in the Q.A.H.A. league. Of these there are five from the ranks of the McGill team which heads this group—McGillivray and Nels Crutchfield, who have been picked for the defence, Jack McGill and Ken Farmer for the forward line, and Maurice Powers in the goal-tending position.

Every position on the team will be ably filled by men of long experience and by those who have performed creditably during the recently closed schedule of games of the Senior Group. Dr. Bell has chosen Johnny Coulter, of the M.A.A.A. squad, to share time in the nets with Powers. These two men are by far the net-minders in the league, and it is not too much to hope for when it is said that these two veterans, in their usual good form, should provide a shut-out against the formidable attack of the Westerners.

One From U. of M.

On the defence, besides Bert McGillivray, will be Bill McKenzie, Frank Carlin and Armand Raymond. (Continued on Page Two)

Poland Protection Of Europe, Claim

Consul-General Says His Country Is Wall

"Poland is the defensive wall against the permanent danger of Asiatic invasion into Europe." Such was the gist of the speech by Dr. George Adankiewicz, Consul General of Poland, last night at the weekly lecture musicale of the Canadian Institute held at the Ritz Carlton Hotel.

The policy of the country he represents, claimed the Consul, is one of no militaristic tendencies. It is anxious to secure peace and economic security, both for itself and for its neighbouring countries. As an example the Battle of the Vistula was cited which showed that while the Poles won this important engagement, they did not take the opportunity of aggression into Russian territory nor did they even pursue the fleeing soldiers. The terms of the Treaty of Riga which followed showed Poland's fair-mindedness. Treaties between Poland and Russia have advanced better understanding between the two countries.

The musical part of the program consisted of the rendering of a sonata by Norman Herschorn, violinist, and George Brewer, pianist. These lecture-musicales, are held under the presidency of Professor William Cowell of this University.

English Literature Society Meets Today At 4 O'clock

Today, at four o'clock, at a meeting of the English Literature Society, Wilfred Werry, a graduate in Literature, will deliver a paper, in Room 44 of the Arts Building, on "The Changing Drama."

After tracing the history of the drama, the speaker will lay special emphasis on its present form and modern tendencies.

Just A Suggestion

UNTIL recently there has been a tendency upon the part of many of the college clubs and associations to emphasize the presence of outsiders at college events, and to take the attendance of the students rather as a matter of course. This attitude was all very well in ordinary years, but now that depression has descended upon us, many of these outsiders are prominent by their absence, and those organizations which hitherto depended upon them, have been forced to turn once more to the student body for their main support.

This coming week the Players' Club is presenting its second production for the season, and the club to make a successful financial showing for the year must gain a clear profit upon it. The first show of the year, "From Morn Till Midnight", barely paid its way, although it was one of the best performances ever staged by the club. Therefore even if the coming production, "The Road to Rome", is still better, as it is claimed, it is doubtful whether any greater financial success would attend it.

Consequently something must be done to increase the revenues of the club. Program advertising, usually a good money maker, offers little hope of success, owing to prevalent economic conditions. Efforts are also being made to augment outside attendance, by means of circulars to graduates etc., as in the past. The only recourse remaining is to increase the student attendance.

The average attendance at "From Morn Till Midnight" of the three evening performances was around the three hundred and fifty mark, and at no time did the attendance at any performance exceed the four hundred level. Moyse Hall accommodates roughly five hundred people, so that without counting the matinee performance, four hundred more people might have attended than did so. This space left vacant each time, was almost entirely made up of the seats in the last two or three rows in the central section, and the last nine or ten rows in the outer sections.

Why not then, economically speaking, create a new market for these seats. In other words place them on sale to the student body only, a few hours before the performance is scheduled, at a cut price of fifty cents per person.

Immediately will come the cry that it will cut into the sale of the ordinary tickets, but it is not so; for practically all the students who attend, purchase student exchange tickets and would do so in almost any case. The extra revenue so obtained would in all probability create a surplus that is urgently needed at the present time.

Still A Problem

EVER since Professor W. G. S. Adams, of Oxford, last year gave a lecture here on "Nationalism", that subject seems to have occupied the attention of many a public speaker in Montreal. Just over a week ago it was discussed at the Y.M.C.A. Forum; it was touched upon by a McGill professor in an address Friday, and next Wednesday its growth in relation to world recovery will be debated at the Mock Parliament.

The majority of authorities who express an opinion on this topic seem to think that Nationalism has both its good and its bad points. Certainly some aspects of it are necessary for our present day culture, and certainly its intolerance has been responsible for many a war. The fact that it is so prominent in modern discussion shows that it is still a powerful force.

Since the problem is a complicated one this welter of discussion is something we may be thankful for. Listening to the thoughts of intelligent men—and listening to the thoughts of unintelligent men—may help to straighten out difficulties. It will show the error of some of our former thinking, and probably aid us towards a solution, if reason is our guide.

Perhaps a broad-minded reflection upon what these speakers say would remove from the writers of school books in the United States their narrow and biased attitude. A cursory survey of their texts, especially in History, is an object lesson in the evils of Nationalism. Children are not only encouraged to love their country—a worthy thing in itself but at times they are encouraged to actually hate others.

We sometimes hear of attempts to make Canadian school-books "Canadian". This simply means an attempt to make them anti-American. Such a retrogressive move will not be permitted if the critical faculties of Canadians are strengthened by unprejudiced thought. And listening to the diverse opinions of competent men and women cannot be anything but beneficial.

The citizen who is in doubt usually likes to hear all sides of his problem presented. So we cannot talk too much about Nationalism, provided that the talk is reasonable and leads to a better understanding. And why should debaters search for "something original" when selecting a subject? The old problems are as yet unsettled, so we need no new ones.

Courses

Take a course in English.
Maybe you will be
A Shakespeare or a Milton—
Or starve on poeise.

Take some sweet philosophy.
You may learn to think
If you don't mix philosophy
With too much foamy drink.

Try some mathematics.
Either circular or square.
Chase x squared through infinity
Then tear out all your hair.

Take a course in History.
Who was Chas. the 1st?
What were Trojan Helen's dates,
Who fought at Weimerwurst?

Your build is kinder, sorter,—
Take a course at S.P.E.
Learn to stand upon your head
And dance like "one fairie".

Now a course in Education;
Why young Willies are so dumb.
Get that look of bored distraction,
Why do teachers all look gium?

Take a course in Classics,
Learn a dash of Greek.
There's comfort in a language
You will never have to speak.

Take a course in French then.
Modernier than Greek.
But turn me loose in Paris
And I won't need to speak.

Sing a song of college,
Courses hard or dry,
Tremble all ye students,
April's very nigh.

Sing a song of Eddie
Feeling like a spree,
Looking for a little girl
To keep him company.
He went to Mary's house
Mary wasn't in.
He sat on Mary's steps
And drank up all the gin.

One day she said, "I hate you."
But her eyes said, "She lies."
One day she will say, "I love you."
Then you will know,
That her love died long ago.

Mid Museums or Art Galleries.
Wherever you may leisurely roam,
If you would view one of the best,
Visit the McCord National at Home.
For there will be surely found
Many wonderful and priceless things
Relating to the lives of statesmen
Heroes, Indians, Kings and Queens.

Its founder and generous Donor,
Was David Ross McCord,
Who all historical things adored,
It was his life's work and ambition
To found a great public museum,
To educate the children of our race.
As a breed practical education
A museum is the saving grace.

Oh, would there were a good museum,
In every City, Village and Town,
To enable all good people to study
Exhibits and historical things profound.
Through Museums we may live in the past
Abandon museums, education would deteriorate fast.

Lessons from museums are ever new,
Shining brightly the centuries through.

P.S. If unable to endow a public museum,
In the heart and mind establish
A private museum of your own.
Fill the walls with beautiful pictures
And happy recollections wherever you roam.
Your efforts may not be lauded in the Gazette
But have a Gazette of your own,
A special Gazette which some day
Would make you known
As you are known.

Disillusioner Finds Flaw

Editor,
McGill Daily.
Dear Sir:

Is it possible that "A proud Canadian mother" attempted to mystify anybody with his 2 equals 1 farce? My mathematical friend should realize that intelligent people know one cannot carry on a process of simple division to a finite end when the divisor is zero. And, sir, I'll tell him how I know: that self-same problem is dealt with in one of the math courses in the Noble Faculty of Engineering, which course every student in the faculty must take.

CINEMA DE PARIS

Le Chanteur Inconnu playing again this week at the Cinema de Paris is another argument in favor of European as opposed to American made films. The photography and recording are excellent, and the singing and acting are well done.

Lucien Muratore, famous French tenor takes the part of a celebrated singer who disappears during an ocean trip to America. Ten years later he is found on the Russian steppes by a body of Frenchmen. Brought back to civilization he is introduced as a mysterious radio singer, wearing a mask (hence the title) but is recognized by his wife, now remarried. All ends happily.

The program includes several short features.

—E.C.

PALACE THEATRE

"Hell Divers" now showing at the Palace Theatre may be considered the best flying picture since "Wings", although it deals with aerial manoeuvres in time of peace instead of war. Clarke Gable, although supposedly sharing stellar honours with Wallace Berry, is considerably overshadowed by the latter in acting ability as well as appeal to the audience. This is probably due to the fact that Gable has no opportunity to show his well known powers as a screen lover, for love plays but a small part in this great picture. The story hinges on the quarrels between Gable and Berry, two mechanics to the U.S. Naval Flying Squad which is manoeuvring off Panama. During a sham battle against a fleet of Zeppelins, which thrills the audience more than any war picture has done, Gable is forced down into the sea. Wallace Berry saves his life but at the cost of his own. Though the story ends tragically, bits of comedy are sprinkled generously throughout the picture, being supplied for the most part by Wallace Berry and his escapades while on shore.

Other items on the program include the Palace News Review, Screen Snapshots and Horace Heidt and his Californians, "Sealskins", featuring Zasu Pitts and Thelma Todd, complete one of the best entertainments presented by the Palace this year.

IMPERIAL THEATRE

Whether intended as such or not—and it is probably doubtful that Hollywood could stoop so far—"The Road to Reno" at the Imperial is a very efficient satire on some aspects of American life. Action centres about the divorce courts of Reno, with attendant amenities in the shape of speak-easies and gambling halls, coupled with drinking parties and hard, hearty women. For those who like them, there is a murder and a suicide, both skillfully performed.

The story might have been really good, if they had not been hampered by the "happy" ending problem. It reaches a rather fine psychological problem when the divorcee mother contemplates marrying the man who attempted, or (the censor again) did seduce her daughter. The son solves the matter in the good old-fashioned fashion. Shortly after, when the daughter decides to give up the man she loves because of her heredity, the picture should end. But she marries him. Lilyan Tashman as the mother, Peggy Shannon as the daughter, and Buddy Rogers are all excellent.

The query raised by the second picture: "Is There Justice?" may be answered by a simple negative and left at that. A good comedy and cartoon round out the program.

CAPITOL

Unusual though it is for a silent film some six years old to be revived on the screen, and the talking screen at that, it is still more extraordinary for it to be revived successfully. The fact that Ben-Hur has accomplished this well-nigh impossible feat is either a vindication of the furor it created on its first presentation, or a grave reflection on the present state of the Cinema.

The film is, of course, the same as before, except for the fact that, in their desire to coerce the public into the belief that the film is really up-to-date, the producers have added an entirely unnecessary and most inadequate "canned" accompaniment in place of the bellowing orchestra which thrilled and astounded our unsophisticated tastes in the past. In spite of all this the film remains as it was, a thoroughly refreshing bath of heroics; and it is difficult to prefer Esther, the "Too too girlish" heroine, or Ramon Navarro, as the amazingly fortitudinous Ben-Hur, or the civil leer and bulging shoulders of Messala—they are all so terribly labelled.

The chariot race is the great climax of the film, and should give an indication of the length that action photography had gone even in the mists of 1926.

Laurel and Hardy do everything that they have ever done, and very little that they have not, in the supporting film, but one is liable to detect a certain lack of fire in their performance. Can it be that they have at last touched bottom?

—Clutterbuck.

LOEW'S

Following the precedent set in recent weeks of heading the vaudeville bill by introducing screen stars to the Montreal public, we find George K. Arthur, English Comedian appearing at Loew's Theatre. As has been the case in the other stars that have appeared recently Mr. Arthur depends to a great extent upon his reputation won on the screen to put his act over.

The feature picture of the week "Under Eighteen" stars Marian Marsh and Anita Page who show marked improvement over some of their more recent appearances. The picture has a human touch, a great part of which is due to Regis Toomey who plays the part of Marian Marsh's poor but aggressive and faithful sweetheart.

The other acts on the Vaudeville bill were a little above the average seen at Loew's recently. Special mention should be made of the Norman Thomas colored quintette who presented a rather novel music and dance act.

St. Conception, Que., Feb. 15, 1932.

"We shall win," stated the Honourable Arthur Marshall in an exclusive interview last night punctuating it with vicious puffs from an Alexandria Special Cigar, the better five-cent smoke. "What we need is less nationalism, and more of that cuckoo spirit; you can fool some of the people some of the time and you can fool some of the people some of the time, but you can't fool some of the people some of the time."

Tois Spittons, Que., Feb. 15, 1932.

At an early hour this morning no trace could be found of the Honourable J. Parker. Searchers were out, all last night but it is suspected that the opposition has had some hand in the matter. The police fear that he inadvertently smoked a cigar of French Canadian origin, and thus was rendered helpless in the hands of his enemies.

Kenzie is an M.A.A.A. man and in all probability will line up with Carlin, the experienced Captain and rear guard of the Victorias. Raymond is the one man on the team who represents the University of Montreal, but he will do this ably as he is rated with the best, and should Coach Bell decide to use Crutchfield on the forward line instead of the defence, then Raymond will be paired with Gillivray to check the Western wings.

The first forward line will include Jack McGill, Ralph St. Germain and Dave Neville. The latter two are perhaps the smoothest working combination in the circuit and are responsible for most of the goals scored by the Winged Wheelers, while McGill is best known as the red team's leading pinch hitter, with the possible exception of Nels Crutchfield.

Alexandre, Raymond, and Farmer Canadians are next in line with representative players, Alexandre and Raymond being chosen. These two will team up with Ken Farmer, giving Bobby Bell a second front rank that should work well together, and that will be particularly deceptive. These players have accounted for 27 points in the City League this winter.

Victorias are not behind Canadians in representation, also placing another man besides Carlin, and that man is perhaps the best-known player in the league, "Sig" Slater. He is in his 16th season in senior hockey, and possesses an enviable record. Slater has performed against most of the best amateur teams in his long career, as well as being a member of the Olympic Championship Granites of 1924, and is still going strong. He fits well into the all-star scheme.

New Sweaters

The sweaters the team will wear include the colours of every club in the league. They will be seen in their right combinations on the arms, while blue will be the background. Coach Bell stated that although the sweaters may not be too beautiful from an artist's viewpoint nevertheless they will be easy to see, and satisfactory to the men who will be wearing them. They will all be playing under their own colours.

It seems to be the newest thing to grow old disgracefully.

Song!

(to the tune of "Cathusalem")

In ancient days there lived a dame
Amytis was the lady's name,
This sprightly matron gained her fame,
By saving Rome from Hannibal.

Chorus

Hi, Hi, "The Road to Rome",
"The Road to Rome", "The Road to Rome",
Hi, Hi, The Road to Rome
Come on and see the elephants!

Around the walls of Rome there lay
The Carthaginian cavalry,
The elephants and infantry,
And all the troops of Hannibal.

Amytis was a wily Greek,
And married to a Roman meek.
Just for a thrill she went to seek,
The Carthaginian General.

What happened then?—you'll be amused
To see her as a spy accused,
And in the end she doesn't lose,
But conquers Mr. Hannibal.

Maughan Scores Decisive Win Over Wilson In Feature

Six New Champions Crowned At Annual B.W.&F. Assault Saturday

Kenny, Thomson, Fulcher, And Meagher Win Freshman Trophies — Ewen Scored Technical K.O. — Lapin And Tedford Retain Wrestling Titles — MacGregor Gave Good Display — Maughan Wins Trophy For Best Bout — Engineering Leads

Prospects Good

By S. S. S.

GOOD bouts were the order of the night on Saturday as McGill's boxers ran off six bouts before a capacity crowd in the Union ballroom, when George Maughan upset the dope by beating Roger Wilson decisively, at the same time taking the Major Forbes Trophy awarded to the winner of the best bout.

T. R. Kenny, a freshman in the Faculty of Engineering, won one of Dr. Hand's cups for being the winner of the best freshman boxing bout. Thomson got the other Hand Cup by being the best loser of the evening, when he dropped a close decision to MacGregor. Jack Ewen also got a trophy for taking a technical knockout victory from Waterfield of Macdonald.

The boxers opened their side of the program with a 112-lb. exhibition between Berkovitz of McGill and Bailey of St. Alban's. The latter carried the fight into the McGill man's territory right from the gong, and used a nice right cross with good effect. It was only Berkovitz's close defensive tactics that kept him from absorbing too much punishment. In the second round the St. Alban's fighter rushed his opponent to the ropes with a speed that elicited ejaculations from all those present. The McGill representative, however, quickly redeemed himself by flooring Bailey, who decided to take advantage of the rest and stayed down to the count of eight. The final paragraph saw Berkovitz take the offensive with such good effect that he was awarded the judges' decision.

St. Alban's had another representative in the next bout when Pickleman took on Bill Moran, the inter-faculty 118-lb. titleholder. The former came in with the characteristic St. Alban's rush, but Moran soon stemmed the tide and commenced hurling lefts and rights at his man. The last minute and a half of the initial round was filled with flying fists and clinches, and Referee Joe Glickman had his hands full in pulling the batters apart. The second round was even, with Moran taking a somewhat larger share of the aggressiveness. Pickleman tried uppercuts in the third stanza with abandon, but Moran came back strongly to take the decision.

With Macdonald and Commerce tied for first place on the inter-faculty score sheet with two points apiece, Hugh MacGregor of Engineering and J. S. Thomson of Commerce took the ring in a 135-lb. final. Although the latter had an advantage in both height and reach, the initial three minutes were practically even, with the Plumber getting in several good punches. MacGregor absorbed plenty of punishment in the first part of the next round, but came back strongly in the latter half to get in some effective straight lefts that found their way through Thomson's close guard. The third round was nothing short of a slug-fest as both men came in close and traded punches in approved fashion. MacGregor was at home here, however, and had his opponent groggy when the bell went, giving the Engineering man the judgment.

The welterweights held the stage next when Jack Ewen of Arts took on Waterfield of Macdonald. Ewen, who has taken decisions from some of the best men in the city, meted out plenty of punishment to the Aggie, rights and lefts doing the trick in no uncertain fashion; the Mac man looked groggy, and although the rest did him good, Ewen chased him right from the start of the next period with such effect that Referee Bert Light stopped the bout after the first minute, giving the fight to Ewen by a technical knockout.

Brenhouse of Arts and Kenny of Engineering mixed it up in the next bout on the program in the 160-lb. class. Both were willing to fight; the former landed a couple of blows

Star Foilsman Leads McGill

HERBERT WIGGERS, one of the aces of the red squad, who turned in a brilliant performance against the Montreal Fencing Club on Saturday to lead his team with three wins.

Montreal Fencers Defeat McGill Team

Score Decisive Victory Over Red-Foilsmen

WIGGERS OUTSTANDING

MCGILL fencers went down to defeat at the hands of the Montreal Fencing Club in the meet which is held previous to the Canadian Intercollegiate Tournament each year. The meet was held on Saturday in the Montreal F. C.'s Salle d'Armes, under the honorary presidency of P. E. Nobbs, Supervisor of Fencing for Canada. Maitres d'Armes Gustave Raimond of McGill and Emanuel Blau of the M.F.C. were also present to watch their pupils in action. J. W. Long, Jr. presided over the jury and T. Barry acted as master of ceremonies.

The Montreal men, mostly McGill graduates, were easily victorious over the less experienced undergraduates. However the latter offered strong opposition and will uphold ably McGill's name in the coming Intercollegiate Tournament. The final score gave M.F.C. 17 victories and McGill 8 victories. In all, McGill had 107 hits scored on them to 80 scored on their opponents.

Wiggers—past holder of the Canadian Intercollegiate title and once foil champion of the middle west Big Three group, while at Michigan—stood out for his team. He gained three victories while Perrault and Moll each scored two. Maguire of the M.F.C. made a clean sweep of his opposition and secured five points for his Club.

Lapin Repeats

By H. A. D.

FIVE bouts was the wrestlers share in the Inter-faculty B. W. & F. Assault Saturday night in the Union Ballroom. Champions were decided in the lightweight, welterweight and light heavyweight divisions. Lapin won the 126-lb. crown, taking a beautiful fall from Eastman, and should go far in the Intercollegiate. Gibb defeated Meagher in the 147-lb. class but Meagher put up a great battle and took the trophy for the best freshman loser. Tedford repeated his last year's victory in the light heavyweight class.

Porteous was elected heavyweight and Southwood 112-lb. champ without opposition. Three of Coach Smith's crack wrestlers were unable to participate in Saturday's activities due to injuries. Wolfe, fighting 118-lb. Aggie, will meet Stall at a latter date. Goltman, last year's 135-lb. champ, will also defend his crown against Fulcher, winner Saturday night, while Scott will meet Payton to decide McGill's representative in the 158-lb. class at the Intercollegiate. The date of these bouts will be announced later.

Payton Wins in 158-lb. Class

The grapplers opened the evening's proceedings with Payton, Macdonald College, and Dainow, Commerce, fighting it out for the right to meet Scott later on for the 158-lb. championship. They did not take long to come to grips and Payton started things along with a headlock. Dainow worked himself free and applied a half-nelson. Payton returned to the offensive; secured a bar combined with a half-nelson and took the first fall in 2 minutes. Dainow tried hard but fell victim to another armlock and just succeeded in wriggling out. At the end of the 30 seconds rest Dainow came out determined to get a fall and even up, which he did with a combined crotch-hold and armlock.

The judges called for an extra five minutes to decide the winner. Payton secured a headlock which seemed to bother Dainow but could not capitalize. Called to the standing position by Referee Smith, they stayed that way for fully two minutes. In the final minute Payton came close to taking the decisive fall but the bell saved Dainow. Payton took the judges' decision.

The second bout on the card was also between the wrestlers; this time Lapin, Dent, and Eastman, Med., 126-pounders came into action. They started cautiously; both men looking for an opening. They sparred around the centre of the mat for four minutes; they finally did get down onto the mat but rolled out of the ring. Referee Smith started them off standing and they were still standing at the end of the six minutes. After the rest they started with Eastman underneath, but in half-a-minute they were on their feet again. Lapin got a headlock and nearly took a fall but shoved his man off the mat. Eastman, in turn tried an armlock but Lapin worked free. The latter retaliated with the same hold and scored a beautiful fall to take the bout.

Fulcher Defeats Oleker

After the boxers had their turn, the matmen returned to the scene. This time Fulcher, Com., and Oleker, Arts, 135-lbs. stepped into the limelight. Oleker scored the first hold with an armlock and Fulcher came back with a crotch-hold. They sparred around centre and when they did go down Fulcher was on top. Neither seemed able to get an advantageous hold. After the rest, Fulcher started activities with a body slam but Oleker got out of his arms. Fulcher was content to stay on top and let the Arts man carry his weight. He tried a cradle hold but it didn't work. Fulcher's greater aggressiveness gave him the judges' decision.

Another intermission was in order for the wrestling fans while the boxers carried on the proceedings. Meagher, (Continued on Page Four)

SUN LIFE WEAKENED

PLAYING against a Sun Life team that had been weakened by the illness of four of its members, Coach Van Wagner's red intercollegiate team succeeded in doing much as it pleased in an exhibition played Saturday night at the M.H.S. gymnasium, following the City League fixture. The assurance team was originally to have been strengthened by the addition of several Fusiliers. As the latter failed to show up, Luke Bannon's men, playing practically without relief, succumbed to the tune of 67-14.

As was to be expected, the redmen found no trouble whatsoever with their weakened opponents, scoring practically at will and enjoying a fast and snappy work-out. For fast the game was, though the Dominion Square boys had hard luck with the east-end basket in the second half, many of their shots bouncing off the rim.

Everyone Scores

Completely recovered from their comparative lethargy in the Queen's encounter, the red team was, at times, playing even brilliant basketball. The Sun Life defence was completely at their mercy. Young and Small enjoying a game of their own, with neither seemingly wishing to score. Lewin had no compunctions in the matter, accounting for ten baskets and one free-shot. Gibson, of Sun Life, scored most for the losers, gaining ten points. Kavanagh and McCallum deserved a better fate with many of their shots. Every man on the red team managed to make a contribution to the huge total.

City Leaguers Fail To Hold Central 'Y' In Third Encounter

Outplay Visitors 16-12 In Second Half Of Game

HOMER BREAKS TIE

THE City Leaguers lost a hard battle on Saturday night in the Montreal High School gym, when they succumbed for the third consecutive time to the Central Y.M.C.A. basketballers by the score of 29-26. When Homer broke the existing tie 50 seconds from the end, he neutralized the lead which the red team had accumulated by dint of hard work and good combination play all through the second half.

The play in general was, in the early moments of the game, of a poor variety — marred by numerous fumbles and errors in judgment. The redmen succeeded in getting an early lead from two successful shots by Talpis. Ross added a point to this with a free-shot. Then Hutton ran wild and sank two long shots from past centre. Homer followed suit to give Central the lead, which they kept until halfway through the second period.

Score Half-time 17-10

Until the half-time whistle went, the "Y" men continued to press, with McGill scoring at occasional intervals. Most of the redmen were kept scoreless in the first half by the sterling work of Whittall on the Y.M.C.A. defence. Hammond had to be content with three points, while Talpis was the high man with two baskets and a free throw.

For the visitors Carson and McAvity combined well. The latter is a former R.M.C. man, and turned in what was by far his best performance thus far. At half-time, Carson had garnered five points, and Len Hutton was next with four. In the second half McGill played like a different team. Within five minutes Central's lead was reduced to a mere three points by long shots from Hammond and Talpis. A free-shot by the former brought it down to two points.

Led by Hammond, who was now shooting with deadly accuracy, McGill tied the score at 22-22. McAvity gave his team the lead again with a pretty effort from the side-line. Talpis was now given two free-shots, on which he made no mistake. This brought the score to 24-24, for the second tie of the evening. The redmen were now combining well, but were unfortunate with their shots, which persisted in bouncing on the basket-rim, and dropping on the wrong side. Finally Talpis gave his team the lead with a shot, resulting from a combination with McMorran and Hammond.

Coach Van Wagner's team continued to press hard, but all their efforts were frustrated by the clever work of the "Y" defence. In territorial play, the redmen had undisputable advantage all through the second half and particularly towards the end of the match. The shooting of their opponents, however, was superior and ultimately proved disastrous to McGill.

Carson Ties Score

The score, which now stood at 24-24 in McGill's favour, was tied by Carson one minute to go. This appeared to give his team new life, for, ten seconds later, Homer sank a long shot that proved to be the winning counter. Ross had another chance at tying the score, but missed underneath the basket. Homer added another point to his total, bringing the score to 29-26 in favour of Central Y.M.C.A. The whistle went soon after, to give the Drummond St. clan their third victory over the redmen.

Junior Squad Will Play St. Francois

Game To Be Played After Exhibition Tilt Tonight

MacNEIL ILL

AS a nightcap to the "All Star" Winnipeg game tonight, McGill Juniors will encounter St. Francois Xavier. Both teams will be out with the firm intention of breaking the three-cornered deadlock that now exists for second place. Columbus defeated Loyola Saturday afternoon and thereby created the tie that must be broken. The winner of tonight's match will be right up with the league-leading Wheelers, who are resting over the week-end.

The red squad will be severely handicapped without the services of Gordie MacNeil. The latter is confined to his home and will be unable to play for some time. This loss will leave a big gap for the redmen to close up but it is thought that they can do so quite capably. The rest of the team will be on hand and should give the French lads plenty of trouble as they have been practising steadily for this encounter.

At present the M.A.A.A. team is out in front but a win for either team will erase their slim lead. The sprint for the play-off positions is well under way, and as only the first two teams figure in the finals, there will be no let up on either side.

Macdonald Co-eds In Exhibition Cage Tilt

M.S.P.E. Seniors And Juniors Score Easy Wins

PASSING GOOD

It was an interesting game when M.S.P.E. seniors defeated Macdonald College co-eds by the overwhelming score of 47-27 in an exhibition game played at R.V.C. on Saturday morning. The juniors made off with 36 points to their opponents total of 19. This game was slower than the preceding one and the shooting was not up to par either.

The senior game started out by being a close competition, looking for a few minutes as though the teams were evenly matched, but the physical-eds soon took to their heels and got some clever combinations started. When the ball came down to their basket they took every opportunity to shoot and met with success, for they seldom missed. Elaine Henry, as a forward, did more than her share to pile up points. Of the Mac girls, special mention must go to Kay Luke, who so capably played guard.

A conspicuous feature of the game was the fact that the visiting team so often used the bounce pass anywhere on the floor and almost inevitably on a throw-in from out of bounds. The return game will be played some time next week when M.S.P.E. co-eds go out to Macdonald College.

M.S.P.E. '32 (47)—E. Henry (34); M. Snowden (0); F. Wells (9); M. Whitely (6); M. Balkwell, N. Noad, M. Wright, K. Morley.

Hornpipe Number By Frank Hanson Finely Interpreted

(Continued from Page One) The orchestra made a very pleasant number of this Bax composition, thus deserving compliments that even a Brahms symphony could hardly allow them. The intricacies of the instrumental tones of this piece demonstrated the value of hearing the musicians in person, for if heard over radio, this music would inevitably be muddled, and its intended effect lost.

Of the remaining items of the program, the Beethoven Symphony No. 7 was most outstanding. In this some very smooth playing was to be found especially in the second and fourth movements. The violas which open the theme of the Allegretto, revealed themselves as a part of the orchestra rarely heard separately, but of exceptionally fine capabilities. The "Siegfried Journey to the Rhine" by Wagner gave a spirited opening to the program, and typically Wagnerian in its style, it kept the orchestra busily occupied. The soloist, Jane Lee presented an interesting interpretation of the aria "One Fine Day" from Puccini's "Madame Butterfly." Her voice, while not of exceptional range, negotiated the difficulties of this number with apparent ease. Her number from Mozart's "Figaro" was not quite as successful, but could hardly be classed as uninteresting. As usual, the full orchestra gave a sympathetic accompaniment.

Six New Champions Crowned At Annual B.W.&F. Assault Saturday

Prospects Good

(Continued from Page Three) to the pantry, but the Plumber retaliated in the form of right hooks to the jaw. Although it opened with a rush, the second stanza waned in its last few minutes with the edge going to Kenny. In the final round, Kenny went after his man with a vengeance and Brenhouse took a tremendous amount of punishment. Kenny's terrific blows in the region of the mouth drew an excessive amount of blood and Referee Light stopped the bout after one minute and a half.

The announcement that Roger Wilson and George Maughan would fight next in the heavy bout was greeted with great applause as this event was looked to as the evening's feature. The first round was quite tame considering what was expected from these boys, but they made up for it in the next, especially Maughan, who hit Wilson with everything but the chandelier. Maughan's terrific right crosses and up-percuts spelled ruin for Wilson's chances at another championship, as the tall medical student battered his classmate about the ring and slashed with right and more rights to establish the question as to who is the better of the two—for this year at any rate. Only a man like Roger Wilson could have absorbed this punishment. Maughan was given the Forbes Trophy for being the winner of the best bout of the evening, and the best bout it certainly was.

HOLD FORUM

Hendel Will Talk On Individualism At S.C.A. Today

"Individualism—Its Values And Defects" will be discussed at five o'clock, today, at the S.C.A. Forum in Strathcona Hall, Sherbrooke St., by Professor C. W. Hendel, who spoke on the same topic, yesterday, at the Y.M.C.A.

All students are invited to come and take part in the discussion. The meeting will be informal, and points raised in yesterday's address will be dealt with.

To Arrange Final Plans For Dance

The second feature of the program, a mock-debate, will be more in the nature of a discussion, the primary object being to get the more reluctant members to speak a little. Naomi Jackson and Nathan Caplan will open the discussion for the affirmative; Kay Wood and Ernie Carter will oppose the motion. Every opportunity for comments from other members will be provided.

Refreshments will be provided as usual, and all who wish may gather around the piano for the customary sing-songs of popular German songs. All members and newcomers will be welcomed by the Executive.

End Newman Retreat

A Communion breakfast at Krausman's Cafe on Sunday morning brought to a close the Annual Newman Retreat.

"Resolved that war should be abolished" was the subject of a debate held by the club, which was won by Jack O'Meara and Mary Grubert on the negative side, Jerry Sampson and Jean Bonar defended the affirmative.

Wally Elmer, hockey coach at Queen's, and former professional hockey star, expressed the conviction that as coach he was naturally out to produce a winning team. That was expected of him, and was his job. Consequently it mattered little to him whether Queen's played senior Intercollegiate or O.H.A. hockey. Coach Elmer believed that Queen's have at present one of the strongest teams in years and would do well in Intercollegiate hockey—if, and the if was emphasized, his complete roster were eligible, but four of his best men are not eligible and thus Queen's would be greatly weakened.

Hockey fans want a winning team. That is why gate receipts have to be considered. Attendance at the games has always been a prime factor and always will be.

Asked what he thought of the proposed International Intercollegiate Union, Coach Elmer was sure that it would be productive of good hockey, and a great box-office attraction.

Lapin Repeats

(Continued from Page Three) Eng., and Gibb, Macdonald College, then came on to decide the 147-lb. championship. Meagher applied a half-nelson but Gibb pivoted out. Both boys tried double armlocks but couldn't keep their opponent on the mat and so lost the advantage. They started throwing one another through the ropes. Gibb got Meagher into a reverse half-nelson combined with a bar to take the only fall and the bout.

Tedford Wins Light Heavyweight The last bout put on by the Coach Smith's boys was in the 175-lb. class when Freedman, Com., hooked up with Tedford, Eng. The first ten minutes of this bout was dull and uninteresting. In spite of all Referee Smith's admonitions they would not get down to action. In ten minutes' wrestling, the boys were on the mat approximately 30 seconds. In the extra five minutes they got to work. Tedford took the first fall with a bar combined with a half-nelson and repeated a minute later with a crotch-hold.

At the close of the evening, Sir Arthur Currie presented two trophies. The first went to Fulcher as the best freshman winner and the second to Meagher, Engineering freshman from Ottawa as the best freshman loser.

(Continued from Page One) however that more teas would be forthcoming, with an occasional dance as well.

Fix Constitution

A provisional Constitution was then read. The name was fixed as The Graduate Student Society of McGill. It was "to further the interest of, and maintain the contact between, the students of the various departments of the Graduate Faculty. All those registered as students in the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research are members."

The officers are to be elected at the annual general meeting in October, and a council is to be formed by the executive to meet once a month. There will also be Social and Standing committees of three members each. The fees, which are set at five dollars will include such things as the McGill Daily and Medical Insurance.

The meeting ended with the election of officers. The following were appointed:

Honorary President Dean A. S. Eve
President Mr. E. E. Massey
Vice President Miss E. Berovich
Secretary Mr. W. F. Heard
Treasurer Mr. G. D. McIntyre

Poirier Presents Pleasing Program

Canadian Organist Performs Brilliantly Yesterday

(R. I. C. P.)

A well-balanced program, representative of the Classical School, French-Canadian, Norwegian, German, Belgian and Continental French composers featured a brilliant recital by the well-known Canadian organist, B. F. Poirier, M.A., yesterday afternoon in Notre Dame Church. Seated at the console of his own mighty organ consisting of 90 speaking stops one of the largest in the Dominion, Mr. Poirier played to an audience chiefly made up of Montreal's lovers of organ music. At no time was the program too comprehensive for the average student.

Mr. Poirier, who is a gifted composer as well as a clever executant, displayed masterly control of his instrument and marvellous powers of interpretation. His own composition, "Centennial March," was interesting, though the outstanding renditions were Bach's "Prelude in G Major" and Baumgartner's modernistic "Tidyle" (opus 5, no. 2) in addition to "Toldans" by Edward Grieg. Dainty pedalling was evident throughout the recital while the massive tones of the organ in the fortissimo passages were impressive.

Mr. Poirier at no time exhibited any form of excitement as he made the four-manual console speak. Diminuendos were well worked out throughout the performance, an excess of the carillon alone accounting for criticism of the program.

more lust for power on the part of politicians, and he knows that few public officers put the welfare of the State before personal enrichment, and preferment. And how many fewer have the interest of humanity at heart!

"Therefore, he refuses to recognize the man in authority as superior to himself. He refuses to admire. And it is only by this attitude that the tyrannizing of our rulers can be checked; that is, by conditional obedience."

In conclusion, the speaker pointed out that the defect of Individualism lies in the fact that it is not in itself a discoverer of social union. It enunciates that whatever is good, all men are entitled to equally, but it does not propose to discover that good. Its chief value is in finding a common justice for all, which is, however, no solution of immediate problems.
